Jakarta: It's an incongruous sight: a group of petite Indonesian women crouched in a rugby scrum.

The coaches of the Jakarta Komodos – Australian expats Aaron Meadows and Stephen Barber – are bellowing from the sidelines: "Run like the plague", "get lower" and "go to ground".

Most of the women in the team are from Mama Sayang Orphanage at Jonggol, south of Jakarta. Barber met some of them on Christmas Eve 2012, when they were singing carols at Aphrodite, a sports bar in South Jakarta.
